GLOBRO – With Training towards International Project Activities

Abstract of the project

The aim of the GLOBRO project is to improve knowledge of and competences in the management of internationally funded research and development projects among organisations and individuals working on R&D and education. The project offers training in the following fields:

- Project cycle management
- International sources of project funding
- Multicultural communication

In addition to training, the project also offers participating organisations and individuals support for networking and finding best possible project partners.

The publication “International projects – Best practices and lessons learned” will follow the structure of the training organised as part of the project and, additionally, seeks to find best practices developed in international projects carried out in Eastern Finland.
